MISS ANNA MANVILLE CHRISTENS NEW SHIP

Freight and Passenger Steamer Beaver Launched at Local Shipyard.

Christened by Miss Anna Manville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Manville, of this city, the handsome new freight and passenger steamer Beaver, building at the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding &amp; Dry Dock Company for the San Francisco and Portland Steamship Company, was successfully launched at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning from ship ways No. 3. The launching was entirely informal and was witnessed by only a small party of invited guests and a few of the yard officials.

Miss Manville wore a handsome suit of Catawba cloth and a black hat and carried pink roses. She was attended by Miss Allene Willett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Willett, of this city, who wore a long fur coat and hat to match and carried yellow chrysanthemums. Miss Willett was the sponsor for the steamer Beaver, a sistership of the Beaver, which was launched at the shipyard last month.

The launching yesterday went off without a hitch, the new ship gliding easily and gracefully down the ways and out into the river. As the vessel started on her journey she was greeted by a chorus of steam whistles of the craft at the yard and in the harbor, the syren of the battleship Delaware being heard above all others. The Beaver is to ply between San Francisco and Portland and is 386 feet long and will cost approximately $500,000 when completed.

The committee probably will not decide on the next place of meeting until sometime next year.
